It seems from the work of the investigating committee, now in session in Columbia, that the "Mark Hanna of South Carolina" has fallen from grace.

The design for the Whinn Davis monument at Richmond has been accepted and soon the memory of the beloved daughter of the Confederacy will be fittingly honored in marble.

Hartwell M. Ayer, Esq., has returned to his first love, journalism, and is again connected with the Florence Times as managing editor. We extend him the right hand of fellowship.

One of the main issues of the war will be fought against trusts. Neither the money question or colonial expansion can be of such importance as the trusting of home industry and the raising of millions of toiling people.

At the recent term of court in New York, Judge Taft can be congratulated among witnesses by declining to sign any certificate of any except state witnesses, and then of only those who went on the stand and testified.

Admiral Dewey announces that under no circumstances will he allow his name to be used as a candidate for President next year. He now has a job to live at a good salary. He can speak the cool sanity and eminent common sense of the man.

Congressman Bailey has announced that he will no longer act as the leader of the Democracy in the halls of Congress. We have no doubt his place will be easily filled, and that too by a man possessed of a broader mind and greater statesmanship.

A hard fight has just been waged in North Carolina over the dispensary laws. It was proposed to put Charlotte and Mecklenburg county under the dispensary and this resulted in a hard fight in the legislature. The bill did not pass, however, and the North Carolinians have reason to congratulate themselves upon their success.

All of the old Confederate Veterans will be more than pleased to know that the effort to erect a monument to Gen. Beauregard at New Orleans has been revived. Some time ago a similar effort was made and the sum of $10,000 was raised. This money was safely invested and can be used at any time. It is hoped that the gallant general may have a monument worthy of his name and his services to the Confederacy.

If you lost money on last year's cotton crop, is there any good reason why you should run the risk of losing again this year by planting the same or a larger acreage than last year? In casting the crop of 1898 let us provide first and foremost above all other things, land enough for food crops and forage. By limiting the cotton area and increasing that of other crops the South can overcome the disaster of 1898. By pursuing any other policy we can invite only a still more direful doom of poverty.

It has been decided to devote one section of the great National Museum in Washington to a great historical exhibit illustrative of the Spanish American war. An immense collection of war relics has already been delivered at the Museum building, and a large force of workmen are now engaged in arranging the articles in suitable cases where for many years to come they will excite the curiosity of millions of visitors from all parts of the world. Probably a collection of war relics of this magnitude was never before placed upon exhibition in any country.

Gen. Maximo Gomez, in Havana, has expressed the opinion that he is now fully convinced that this Government will loyally keep its promise to the effect that Cuba will soon be free and independent. This expression of confidence, coming from a man much beloved by Cubans, is likely to create general satisfaction and remove cause for discontent. The three million dollars which has been sent from the Government treasury at Washington, to be divided among the Cuban troops, will also have a convincing influence, being proof positive that this Government keeps its promises.

By the time Congress meets next December President McKinley may have affairs in all the newly acquired islands in a condition that will permit the Republican party to adopt such a policy in regard to them as it may consider advisable. What that policy will be not even the leaders of the Republicans, probably, are prepared to say at this time. Much will depend, of course, upon the measure of success which attends the efforts of the President to bring about a situation that will permit of legislation in accordance with Republican views. No doubt the islands will be handled so as to make all the capital possible for the Republican party in the presidential campaign next year.

With the departure of Senator Gorman from the United States Senate the Democrats in that body lose their recognized and respected leader. It is generally understood that his place will be taken by Senator Jones, of Arkansas, who has long occupied a prominent position in the direction of Democratic policy in the State. Mr. Jones is especially well qualified for leadership because of his knowledge of national affairs, which has largely increased while serving as chairman of the Democratic National Committee. Mr. Jones is also thoroughly conversant with every detail of financial and tariff questions, while as a tactician in parliamentary matters he has few equals. He is a man of magnetic temperament, approachable and courteous, so that his personal characteristics add to his other qualifications.

STATE NEWS.

Greenville County has 381 prisoners on its list.

Several buildings were destroyed by the recent storm at Westminster. Ex-Congressman W. H. Perry is critically ill at his home in Greenville County.

There are now sixty-two dispensary constables on the force and they cost the State about $50,000 a year.

Ex-President Cleveland and a party of friends have been spending a few days in Orangeburg hunting and fishing.

Snow fell in Charleston last Wednesday for the second time this winter. Such a record is unprecedented.

Gov. Ellerbe has issued a proclamation commanding the people of Abbeville and Greenwood to let the Tolberts return to their homes.

The meeting out of the five regiments of volunteers in Greenville will begin the 25th instant and the last to go will be the 2nd West Virginia, April 10.

In spite of the efforts of the town's efficient board of health two cases of smallpox have appeared on the outskirts of Bishopville, on the plantation of Mr. Samuel Bradley.

The business men of Little Rock, in Marion county, are taking steps to build a cotton factory. It is proposed to start with a capital stock of $50,000, and increase it afterwards, should the venture be successful.

The citizens of Marion, the home of Lieutenant Victor Blue, have raised the sum of $100 for a testimonial to the gallant young officer. It will probably take the shape of a handsome bronze cup, or a gold medal.

Mrs. Cyrus H. McCormick will furnish another cottage for the Thorne-Orphanage at Clinton, S. C. She has contributed several hundred dollars to this institution, and this recent contribution shows her interest in this orphanage.

One of the most experienced and largest fruit growers of the Ridge section of Saluda county says the recent blizzard will cut off at least 75 per cent. of the peach crop this year. The fruit crop of Ridge Spring and vicinity usually "grosses" from $75,000 to $100,000 annually. From these figures one can appreciate the damage to those people done by the blizzard.

Judge Gary has granted bail to the constables who made the raid on Stuart's house in Columbia, to Crawford in the sum of $3,000, Dorn and Coleman $1,000 each, and Cooley $500.

Ex-Governor John Peter Richardson has been seriously ill the past week in Columbia. He had hemorrhage from the nose, and was greatly prostrated. His many friends wish for his complete recovery.

Mr. W. R. Bullock, Clerk of the Court of Abbeville County, was indicted on the charge of forging Judge Buchanan's name to the jurors and witnesses certificates. The case came up before Judge Benet who quashed the indictment on the ground that the certificates alleged to have been forged were not properly made out and ought not to have been paid by the county treasurer. The State appealed and the Supreme Court has just rendered a decision which reverses the Circuit Judge and remands the case to the Circuit Court.

Columbia expects soon to have a line of boats on the Congaree from Columbia to Georgetown.

Mr. Lupton in the Bethany School last week we had a spelling contest which was fine. Twelve pages of very difficult spelling were given out, and the following pupils were perfect:

Girls: Cora Wright, Zouella Wright, Bertie Wright, Emma Banister, Leona Banister, Nettie King, Laura Fields, Gertrude Chick, Minnie Haynie, Sodie Wright and Maudie Griffin.

A washout on the Charleston and Western Carolina road, just outside of Laurens, caused an accident to a freight train coming in from Augusta. Four cars were derailed, but no one was hurt in the smash-up.
